THE #1 NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLING AUTHOR

Okay, so my mother was probably right, but I'm from Jersey and truth is, I have a hard time getting grip on the good example thing. A good example in Jersey isn't exactly the national ideal. Not mention, I inherited a lot of unmanageable brown hair and rude hand gestures from my fathers Italia side of the family. What am

I supposed to do with that?

My mother's side is Hungarian and from this I get blue eyes and the ability to eat birthday cake as still button the top snap on my jeans. I'm told the good Hungarian metabolism lasts only until I' forty, so I'm counting down. The Hungarian genes also carry a certain amount of luck and gyps intuition, both of which I need in my present job. I'm a Bond Enforcement Agent, working for n cousin Vincent Plum, and I run down bad guys. I'm not the best

BEA in the world, and I'm not the worst. An incredibly hot guy with the street name Ranger is the best. And my sometimes partner, Lula, is possibly the worst.

Maybe it's not fair to have Lula in the running for worst bounty hunter of all time. To begin with, the are some really bad bounty hunters out there. And more to the point, Lula isn't actually a boun hunter. Lula is a former hooker who was hired to do the filing for the bail bonds office but spends a l

'It's never my fault. Do they care? I don't think they care!'
'You got bad car karma,' Lula said. 'But at least you're lucky at love.'
For the last couple months I've been living with Joe Morelli.
Morelli's a very sexy, very handsome Trenton cop. Morelli and I have a long history and possibly long future. Mostly we take it day by day, neither of us feeling the need for documented commitme right now. The good thing about living with a cop is that you never have to call home when disast strikes. As you might suspect, that's also the bad part. Seconds after the emergency call goes in on the robbery and car fire, describing my yellow Escape, at least forty different cops, EMTs, and fing fighters will track Morelli down and tell him his girlfriend's done it again.
Lula and I moved farther from the fire, knowing from experience that an explosion was a possibilit We stood patiently waiting, listening to the sirens whining in the distance, getting closer by the second. Morelli's unmarked cop car would be minutes behind the sirens. And somewhere in the mix emergency vehicles my professional mentor and man of mystery, Ranger, would slide in to check things out.
'Maybe I should leave,' Lula said. There's all that filing back at the office. And cops give me the runs
Not to mention she was illegally carrying a concealed weapon that was instrumental in this who fiasco.
'Did you see the guy's face when he pulled his mask off?' I asked her.
'No. I was looking for my gun. I missed that.'
Then leaving might be a good idea,' I said. 'Get me a sub on the way back to the office. I don't thin they'll be making nachos here for a while.'
'I'd rather have the sub anyways. A car fire always gives me an appetite.'
And Lula took off power walking.

Victor was on the other side of the car, stomping around and pulling at his hair. He stopped stomping and fixed his attention on me. 'Why didn't you shoot him? I know you. You are a bounty hunter. Yo should have shot him.'

I'm not carrying a gun,' I told Victor.

'Not carrying a gun? What kind of bounty hunter are you? I watch television. I know about the things. Bounty hunters always have many guns.'

'Actually, shooting people is a no-no in bond enforcement.'

Victor shook his head. 'I don't know what this world is coming to when bounty hunters don't sho people.'

A blue-and-white patrol car arrived and two uniforms got out and stood hands on hips, taking it all i I knew both cops. Andy Zajak and Robin Russell.

Andy Zajak was riding shotgun. Two months ago he'd been plainclothes, but he'd asked a loc politician some embarrassing questions during a robbery investigation and had gotten busted back uniform. It could have been worse. Zajak could have been assigned to a desk in the tower Irrelevance. Sometimes things could get tricky in the Trenton police department.

Zajak waved when he saw me. He said something to Russell, and they both smiled. No doubt enjoying the continuing calamitous exploits of Stephanie Plum.

I'd gone to school with Robin Russell. She was a year behind me, so we weren't the closest of friend but I liked her. She wasn't especially athletic when she was in high school. She was one of the qui brainy kids. And she surprised everyone when she joined Trenton PD two years ago.

A fire truck followed Zajak and Russell. Plus two more cop cars and an EMT truck. By the tin Morelli arrived, the hoses and chemical extinguishers were already out and in use.

Morelli angled his car behind Robin Russell's and walked across to me. Morelli was lean and ha muscled with wary cop eyes that softened in the bedroom. His hair was almost black, falling in wav over his forehead, brushing his collar. He was wearing a slightly oversize blue shirt with the sleev rolled, black jeans, and black boots with a Vibram sole. He had his gun on his hip and, with or witho the gun, he didn't look like someone you'd want to mess with. There was a tilt to his mouth that cou pass for a smile. Then again, it could just as easily be a grimace. 'Are you okay?'

'It wasn't my fault,' I told him.

This got a genuine smile from him. 'Cupcake, it's never your fault.' His eyes traveled to the remountain bike with the destroyed tire. 'What's with the bike?'

'Lula accidentally shot the tire. Then a guy wearing a red devil mask ran out of the store, took a look the bike, tossed a Molotov cocktail into the store, and set off on foot. The bottle didn't break, so Vict pitched it at the devil. The bottle bounced off the devil's head and crashed against my car.'

'I didn't hear the part about Lula shooting the tire.'

`Yeah, I figured it wasn't necessary to mention that in the official statement.'

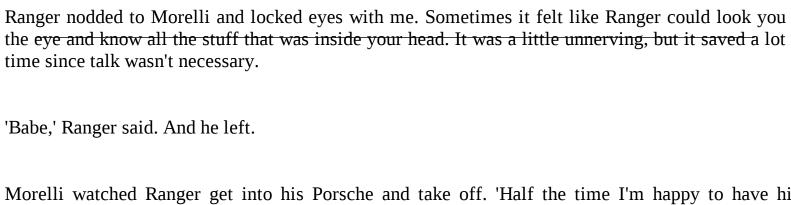

I looked past Morelli, as a black Porsche 911 Turbo pulled to the curb. There weren't a lot of people Trenton who could afford the car. Mostly high-level drug dealers... and Ranger.

I watched as Ranger angled out from behind the wheel and ambled over. He was about the same heig as Morelli, but he had more bulk to his muscle. Morelli was a cat. Ranger was Rambo meets Batma Ranger was in SWAT black cargo pants and T-shirt.

His hair was dark, and his eyes were dark, and his skin reflected his Cuban ancestry. No one knew Ranger's age, but I'd guess it was close to mine. Late twenties to ear thirties. No one knew where Ranger lived or where his cars and cash originated. Probably it was best not to know.

Morelli watched Ranger get into his Porsche and take off. 'Half the time I'm happy to have hi watching over you. And half the time it scares the hell out of me. He's always in black, the address of his driver's license is a vacant lot, and he never says anything.'

'Maybe he has a dark history... like Batman. A tortured soul.'

Tortured soul? Ranger? Cupcake, the guy's a mercenary.'

Morelli playfully twirled a strand of my hair around his finger.

'You've been watching Dr Phil again, right? Oprah? Geraldo? Crossing Over with John Edward?'

'Crossing Over with John Edward. And Ranger's not a mercenary. At least not officially in Trento. He's a bounty hunter

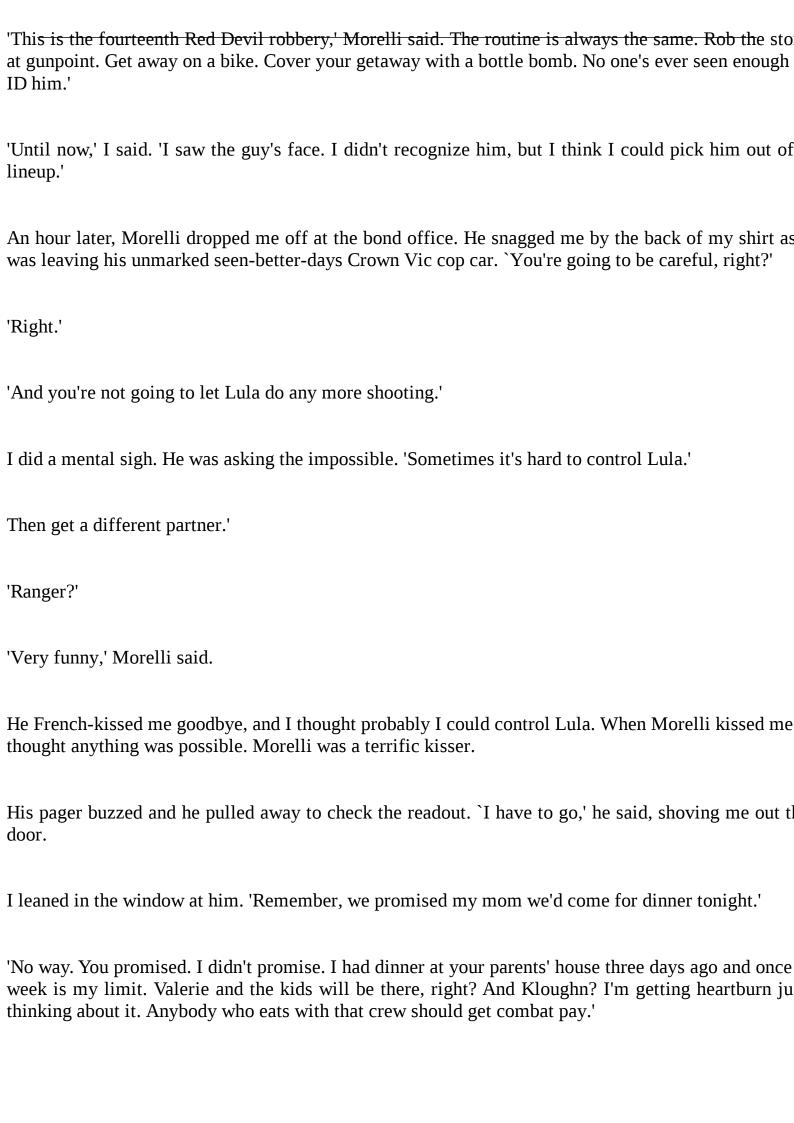

... like me.'

'Yeah, and I really hate that you're a bounty hunter.'

Okay. I know I have a crappy job. The money isn't all that great and sometimes people shoot at m Still, someone's got to make sure the accused show up in court. 'I do a service for the community, told Morelli. 'If it wasn't for people like me the police would have to track these guys. The taxpay would have to foot the bill for a larger police force.'

`I'm not disputing the job. I just don't want you doing it.'

There was a loud phooonf sound from the underside of my car, flames shot out, and a steaming ti popped off and rolled across the lot.

He was right. I had no comeback. A little over a year ago my sister's husband took off for par unknown with the baby-sitter.

Valerie immediately moved back home with her two kids and took a job with a struggling lawyer Albert Kloughn. Somehow, Kloughn managed to get Val pregnant and in nine months' time materials are small three-bedroom, one-bathroom house in the Chambersburg section of Trenton was hon to my mom, my dad, Grandma

Mazur, Valerie, Albert Kloughn, Val's two little girls and newborn baby.

As a short-term fix to my sister's housing dilemma I volunteered the use of my apartment. I w spending most of my nights with Morelli anyway, so it wasn't a total sacrifice on my part. It's now three months down the road at Valerie is still in my apartment, returning to my parents' house every night for dinner. Once in a whi something fun happens at dinner... like Grandma setting the tablecloth on fire or Kloughn choking a chicken bone. But usually it's just flat-out migraine-inducing bedlam.

'Boy, too bad you'll miss the roast chicken with gravy and mashed potatoes,' I told Morelli in a las ditch effort. 'Probably pineapple upside-down cake for dessert.'

'Not gonna work. You're going to have to come up with something better than roast chicken to get mover to your parents' house tonight.'

'What, like wild gorilla sex?'

'Not even wild gorilla sex. It would have to be an orgy with identical Japanese triplets.'

I gave Morelli an eye roll, and I left for the bond office.

Tour sub's filed under S,' Lula said when I swung through the door. 'I got you capicolla and provolor and turkey and pepperoni with some hot peppers.'

I opened the file and retrieved my sub. There's only half a sandwich here.'

'Well, yeah,' Lula said. The and Connie decided you wouldn't want to get fat by eating that whole su all yourself. So we helped you out.'

Vincent Plum Bail Bonds is a small storefront office on Hamilton

Avenue. Ordinarily a more lucrative location for a bonds office would be across from the courts or the lockup. Vinnie's office is across from the Burg, and a lot of Vinnie's repeat customers are local. No that the Burg is a bad neighborhood. Truth is, the Burg is possibly the safest place to live if you have to live in Trenton. There's a lot of low-level mob in the Burg and if you misbehave in the Burg you could quietly disappear for a very long time... like forever.

It's even possible that some of Connie's relatives might assist in the disappearance. Connie is Vinnie office manager. She's five foot four and looks like Betty Boop with a mustache. Her desk is positioned in front of Vinnie's small inner office, preventing the unsuspecting from walking in on Vinnie which he's on the phone with his bookie, taking a snooze, or having a private conversation with his Johnson Also behind Connie's desk is a bank of file cabinets. And behind the file cabinets is a small stockroop packed with guns and ammo, office supplies, bathroom supplies, and assorted confiscated booty the mostly runs to computers, fake Rolex watches, and fake Louis Vuitton handbags.

I slouched onto the scarred dung-brown fake leather couch that was positioned against a side wall the outer office and unwrapped the sub.

'Big day in court yesterday,' Connie said, waving a handful of manila folders at me. 'We had three guys fail to appear. The bad news is they're all chump change. The good news is none of them have killed or raped in the last two years.'

I took the folders from Connie and returned to the couch. `I suppose you want me to find these guys, said to Connie.

- `Yeah,' Connie said. 'Finding them would be good. Dragging their asses back to jail would be even betta:'
- I flipped through the folders. Harold Pancek. Wanted for indecent exposure and destruction personal property.

'What's the deal on Harold?' I asked Connie.
'He's local. Moved to the Burg three years ago from Newark,

Lives in one of the row houses on Canter Street. Got drunk two weeks ago and tried to take a leak of Mrs Gooding's cat, Ben. Ben was a moving target and Pancek mostly got the side of Gooding's hou and Gooding's favorite rosebush. Killed the rosebush and took the paint off the house. And Gooding says she washed the cat three times and he still smells like asparagus.'

Lula and I had our faces frozen in curled-lip grimaces.

'He doesn't sound like much of a threat,' Connie said. 'Just make sure you stand back if he whips it o to relieve himself.'

I took a quick look at the two remaining files. Carol Cantell, wanted for holding up a Frito-Lay truc This brought an instant smile to my face. Carol Cantell was a woman after my own heart.

The smile turned to raised eyebrows when I saw the name on the last file. Salvatore Sweet, charge with assault. 'Omigod,' I said to Connie. 'It's Sally. I haven't seen him in ages.' When I first met Salvatore Sweet he was playing lead guitar for a transvestite rock band. He helped me solve a crim and then disappeared into the night.

'Hey, I remember Sally Sweet,' Lula said. 'He was the shit.

What's he doing now besides beating on people?'

'Driving a school bus,' Connie said. 'Guess the rock career didn't work out. He's living on Fente Street, over by the button factory.'

Sally Sweet was an MTV car crash. He was a nice guy but he couldn't get through a sentence withousing the T word fourteen times. The kids on Sally's bus probably had the most inventive vocabulari in the school.

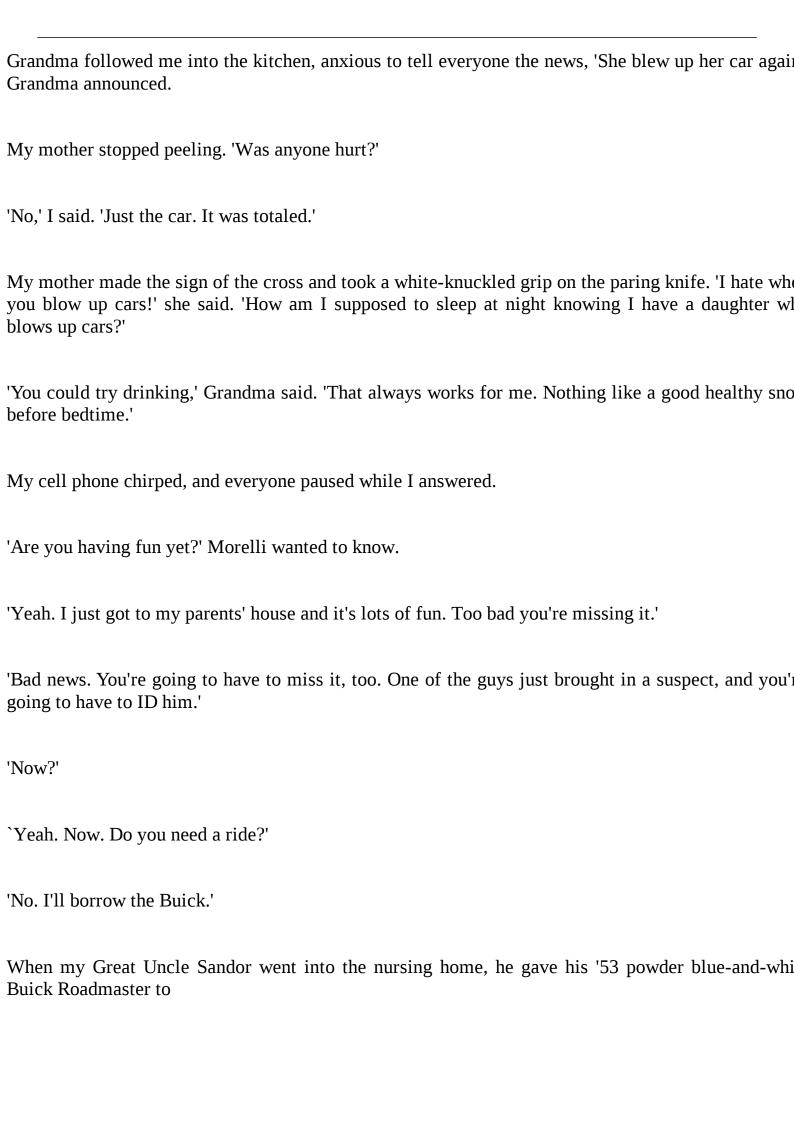

We approached the front door and knocked. And Cantell answered. 'Oh God,' Cantell said. 'Don't tell me you're from the bond agency. I told the woman on the phone didn't want to go to jail.' This is just a rebooking process,' I told her. 'We bring you in and then Vinnie bonds you out again.' 'No way. I'm not going back to that jail. It's too embarrassing. I'd rather you shoot me and kill me.' 'We wouldn't shoot you,' Lula said. 'Unless, of course, you drew a gun. What we'd do is gas you. W got pepper spray. Or we could zap you with the stun gun. My choice would be the stun gun on accou of we're using my car and there's a lot of snot produced if we give you a face full of pepper spray. just had my car detailed. I don't want the back seat full of snot.' Cantell's mouth dropped open and her eyes glazed over. 'I just took a couple bags of chips,' she sai 'It's not like I'm a criminal.' Lula looked around. 'You wouldn't have any of them chips left over, would you?' 'I gave them all back. Except for the ones I ate.' Cantell had short brown hair and a pleasant round face. She was dressed in jeans and an extra-roon T-shirt. Her age was listed as thirty-two. 'You should have kept your court date,' I said to Cantell. 'You might have only gotten communit service.' 'I didn't have anything to wear,' she wailed. 'Look at me. I'm a house! Nothing fits. I ate a truck full Fritos!' 'You're not as big as me,' Lula said. 'And I got a lot of stuff to wear. You just gotta know how to shop

We should go out shopping together some day. My secret is I only buy spandex and I buy it too small

That way it sucks everything in. Not that I'm fat or anything.
It's just I got a lot of muscle.'
Lula was currently in athletic gear mode, wearing hot pink stretch pants, matching halter top, a serious running shoes. The strain on the spandex was frightening. I was heading for cover at the fi sign of a seam unraveling.
'Here's the plan,' I said to Cantell.`I'm going to call Vinnie and have him meet us at the courthous. That way you can get bonded out immediately, and you won't have to sit around in a holding cell.'
'I guess that would be okay,' Cantell said. 'But you have to get me back here before my lads get off t school bus.'
'Sure,' I said, 'but just in case, maybe you want to make alternative arrangements.'
'And maybe I can lose some weight before I have to go to court,' Cantell said.
'Be a good idea not to hold up any more snack food trucks,' Lula said.
'I had my period! I needed those chips.'
'Hey, I hear you,' Lula said.
After we got Cantell rebooked and rebonded and returned to her house, Lula drove me across tow back to the Burg.
'That wasn't so bad,' Lula said. 'She seemed like a real nice person. Do you think she's going to sho up for court this time?'
'No. We're going to have to go over to her house and drag her to court, kicking and screaming.'

'Yea h, that's what I think, too.'
Lula pulled to the curb and idled in front of my parents' house.
Lula drove a red Firebird that had a sound system capable of broadcasting rap over a five-mile radiu Lula had the sound on low but the bass at capacity, and I could feel my fillings vibrating.
'Thanks for the ride,' I told Lula. 'See you tomorrow.'
To,' Lula said. And she took off.
My Grandma Mazur was at the front door, waiting for me.
Grandma Mazur rooms with my parents now that Grandpa Mazur is living la vidu loca everlasting Grandma Mazur has a body like a soup chicken and a mind that defies description. She keeps her stee gray hair cut short and tightly permed. She prefers pastel polyester pantsuits and white tennis show And she watches wrestling. Grandma doesn't care if wrestling's fake or real.
Grandma likes to look at big men in little spandex panties.
'Hurry up,' Grandma said. 'Your mother won't start serving drinks until you're at the table, and I need one real bad. I had the day from heck. I traipsed all the way over to Stiva's Funeral Parlor for Lorrai Schnagle's viewing, and she turned out to have a closed casket. I heard she looked real bad at the end but that's still no reason to deprive people from seeing the deceased. People count on getting a look made an effort to get there, dressing up and everything. And now I'm not going to have anything talk about when I get my hair done tomorrow. I was counting on Lorraine Schnagle.'
'You didn't try to open the casket, did you?'
The? Of course not. I wouldn't do such a thing. And anyway, it was locked up real tight.'
'Is Valerie here?'

Grandma Mazur. Since Grandma Mazur doesn't drive (at least not legally), the car mostly sits in m father's garage. It gets five miles to a gallon of gas. It drives like a refrigerator on wheels. And doesn't fit my self-image. I see myself more as a Lexus SC430. My budget sees me as a secondhar Honda Civic. My bank was willing to stretch to a Ford Escape.

That was Joe,' I told everyone. 'I have to meet him at the police station. They think they might have the guy who set fire to my car.'

'Will you be back for the chicken?' my mother wanted to know.

'And what about dessert?'

'Don't wait dinner. I'll get back if I can, and if not I'll take leftovers.' I turned to Grandma. `I'm goin to have to commandeer the Buick until I can replace the Escape.'

'Help yourself,' Grandma said. 'And I'll ride with you to the police station. I could use to get out of the house. And on the way home we could stop at Stiva's to see if they got the lid up for the evening viewing. I'd hate to miss out on seeing Lorraine.'

Twenty minutes later, Grandma and I cruised into the public parking lot across the street from the constant shop. The Trenton police are housed in a no-nonsense chunk of brick and mortar in a no nonsense part of town that gives the cops easy access to crime. The building is half cop shop and half courthouse the courthouse half has a guard and a metal detector. The cop half has an elevator decorated with bullet holes.

I looked at Grandmas big black patent leather purse. Grandma was known to, from time to time, car a.45 long barrel. 'You don't have a gun in there, do you?' I asked.

'Who, me?'

If they catch you taking a concealed weapon into the building they'll lock you up and throw the ke away.'

'How would they know I got a concealed weapon if it's concealed? They better not search me. I'm old lady. I got certain rights.'

Carrying a concealed weapon isn't one of them.'
Grandma pulled the gun out of her purse and shoved it under her seat. 'I don't know what this country coming to when an old lady can't keep a gun in her purse. We got a rule for everything these day What about the bill of health? It says I can bear arms!'
That's the Bill of Rights, and I don't think it specifically addresses guns in purses.' I locked the Bui and called Joe on my cell. 'I'm across the street,' I told him. 'And I've got Grandma with me.'
She isn't armed, is she?'
Not anymore.'
I could feel Joe smile across the phone line. `I'll meet you downstairs.'
Civilian traffic in the building was minimal at this time of day.
The courts were closed, and police business was shifting from front-door inquiries to back-do arrests. A lone cop sat in a bulletproof cage at the end of the hall, struggling to stay awake on his shi Morelli stepped out of the elevator just as Grandma and I swung through the front-entrance doors.
Grandma looked at Morelli and gave a snort. 'He's wearing a gun,' she said.
He's a cop.'
Maybe I should be a cop,' Grandma said. 'Do you think I'm too short?'
Thirty minutes later, Grandma and I were back in the Buick.
That didn't take long,' Grandma said. 'I hardly had a chance to look around.'
I couldn't make an ID. They picked up a guy who was carrying the backpack, but it wasn't the guy w ran out of the store. He said he found the backpack discarded in an alley.'

'Bummer. This doesn't mean we're going to have to go back to the house, does it? I can't take any mo of the galloping and the baby talk.'
'Valerie talks baby talk to the baby?'
'No, she talks it to Kloughn. I don't like to make judgments on people, but after a couple hours listening to "honey pie smoochie bear cuddle umpkins" I'm ready to smack someone.'
Okay, so I was glad I'd never been there when Valerie called Kloughn cuddle umpkins because I would have wanted to smack someone, too. And my self-restra isn't as well honed as Grandma's.
'It's too early to go to the viewing,' I said to Grandma. 'I guess I could stop in on Sally Sweet. turned up Failure To Appear today on an assault charge.'
'No kidding? I remember him. He was a nice young man.
Sometimes he was a nice young woman. He had a plaid skirt I always admired.'
I pulled out of the lot, right-turned onto North Clinton, and followed the road for almost a quar mile. At one time in Trenton's history this was a thriving industrial area. The industry had all vacated or drastical downsized and the rotting carcasses of factories and warehouses produced an ambience similar what you might find in postwar Bosnia.
I left Clinton and wove my way through a neighborhood of small bleak single-story row hous Originally designed to contain the factory workers, the row houses were now occupied by hardworkin people who lived one step above welfare plus there were a few oddballs like Sally Sweet.

I fo und Fenton and parked in front of Sweets house. 'Wait in the car until I find out what's going on, said to Grandma.
'Sure,' Grandma said, her hands gripping her purse in excited anticipation, her eyes glued to Swee front door. The Buick was a car designed for a man, and Grandma seemed swallowed up by the monster. Her feet barely touched the floor, her face was barely visible over the dash. A timid womanight feel overwhelmed by Big Blue. Grandma was a little shrunken, but she wasn't timid, and there wasn't a whole lot the overwhelmed Grandma. Thirty seconds after Grandma agreed to wait in the car, she was on the sidewalk, following me to Sweets front door.
1 thought you were going to wait in the car?' I said.
'I changed my mind. I thought you might need help.'
'Okay, but let me do the talking. I don't want to alarm him.'

I knocked on Sweets front door, and the door opened on the third knock. Sally Sweet looked out at m recognition kicked in, and his face creased into a grin. 'Long time no see,' he said. 'What brings you

'We're here to drag your behind back to jail,' Grandma said.

I gave another rap on the door, 'Open the door,' I said. 'I just want to talk to you.'

'Fuck,' Sally said. And he slammed the door shut.

'What was that?' I asked Grandma.

'I don't know. It just popped out.'

'Sure,' Grandma said.

my casa?'

sample content of Ten Big Ones (Stephanie Plum, No. 10) (Stephanie Plum Novels)

- The Masqueraders book
- click Bloodthirsty pdf
- Algorithms (4th Edition) pdf
- Media and Male Identity: The Making and Remaking of Men pdf, azw (kindle)
- click The Conservative Party and the Extreme Right 1945-1975 pdf, azw (kindle), epub, doc, mobi
- http://crackingscience.org/?library/The-Masqueraders.pdf
- http://www.satilik-kopek.com/library/Bloodthirsty.pdf
- http://fitnessfatale.com/freebooks/A-Stranger-in-Mayfair--Charles-Lenox-Mystery--Book-4-.pdf
- http://aircon.servicessingaporecompany.com/?lib/The-Charisma-Myth--How-Anyone-Can-Master-the-Art-and-Science-of-Personal-Magnetism.pdf
- http://creativebeard.ru/freebooks/Worlds-That-Weren-t.pdf